

I LIKE TO TALK ABOUT HAIR, ME, YOU, FASHION(MAYBE), AND LIVING.

// Transitioning to natural

Home

Reviewing: Jane Carter Solution Nourish & Shine and Scalp Nourishing Serum

 Email |  Like 1 Unl

FRI, 01/01/2010 - 5:19PM BY KLILKP

0 COMMENTS - 142 VIEWS

Hi, I apologize for not blogging as frequently as I should... the holidays are crazy!! I have been online trying to find some products that I feel are worthy of my money, I'm very alert about sulfates; that's the same thing that's in soap, so if it gets germs off your skin...imagine whats happening to your follicles. Parabens which are synthetic chemicals and have been studies that this has been found in breast tumors, glycerin can be bad for your hair depending on your climate area. And lastly silicone, because I try to frequently wash my hair, it can cause build up... nothing major you can't fix with some baking soda or apple cider vinegar.

But to the point, I seen the Jane Carter line in Whole Foods (health food store) and I was interested because I seen how light the ingredients were, but the price made me resist. I went home and seen it on a website(curlmart.com) and I read the reviews... I was sold!! I seen it was the best of the best and I seen how they ranted about how nourished and shiny their hair appeared to be. Well at Whole Foods this is a dollar or so cheaper(I'm a budget queen) and then when I put it on my hair I noticed it did help my texture to soften up a bit(I have a 4a hair type). I also haven't had to put any more on my hair the next day, It still is moist. Not a greasy residue. I wasn't too sure what to think at first because I was stuck on the price, but it's really good. It made my hair more manageable and softer. I loved the way it smelled, it can be a little strong, but let a minute or so past and its not bad. And another plus is it's good for the skin! I got out the shower and my skin was SO dry, but I put some on my thighs, where I itch the most, and almost instantly they were smooth and soft. So there are many things you do with this great product. I have no complaints, there aren't too many natural products that are inexpensive. And you get what you pay for, so always keep that in mind!!

Now I also got the Scalp Nourishing Serum, it was $13.99 at Whole Foods. This is mostly designed for hair loss, thin hair, dry scalp, or alopecia. I have thin hair and I just wanted to try it out. Well I liked it, I didn't feel a tingle much(maybe because my husband massaged my scalp and I fell asleep). But my scalp does feel a little better with the one application. Just apply exactly what it says on the bottle a little goes a long way massaged correctly. I liked the way this smelled also, not overbearing at all. If you purchase these items let me know how you like them. I hope I was of some help!! Have a great and safe new year in 2010!

 Like  You like thisBe the first of your friends to like this. · Admin Page · Error Unlike You like this.

Previous

Next

Post A Comment

To post comments, please log in or register.

// About Me

KLILKP
PRIVATE MESSAGE ME
Member for 41 weeks 2 days
Last online 24 weeks 6 days ago

// 2 followers

 Start following this site

// Latest Headlines

- Curlmart.com
- Reviewing: Jane Carter Solution Nourish & Shine and Scalp Nourishing Serum
- Nice Bodily Mixtures
- My Reason for the Transition...

// Popular Posts

- Reviewing: Jane Carter Solution Nourish & Shine and Scalp Nourishing Serum
- My Reason for the Transition...
- Nice Bodily Mixtures
- Curlmart.com

// Latest Comments

- Thanks!! I don't recall using botain oil, I have to by klilkp on Nice Bodily Mixtures
- You're right! I loooove the argan oil. Although by r2tharris on Nice Bodily Mixtures

// Follow Me

 Start following this site