

Urban | Curlyz

Stuck on fly hair

HOME ABOUT BECOME A CONTRIBUTOR FOLLOW UC ON TWITTER

Search Urbancurlz

An Unnaturally Long Journey

Tags: Contributory Articles

Written by Wendy "Dia" Albouy

This may sound crazy, but it has taken me over 7 years to finally maintain and keep my hair natural. Up until now I was caught in the vicious cycle of growing natural hair only to surrender to the magnetic pull of a texturizer every time I became frustrated with managing my hair. I am amazed at how easy it was for me to return to chemicals time and time again even though I knew it was unhealthy.

As I look back over my many failed attempts at achieving natural hair I realize that I lacked patience when it came to handling my unfamiliar hair texture. Learning to be patient didn't happen overnight but with consistent care (treatments, covering my hair with a satin cap at night, proper nutrition and using products geared for natural black hair) I began to appreciate my kinky tresses and in time my strands became less coarse and more manageable. Sure I still have frustrating hairstyling days, but I now go with the flow. After all there is nothing that a good headband can't fix!

I achieved natural hair this time around because I made sure I armed myself with proper hair care information. Through the Internet and books there are unlimited amounts of information and guidelines available to help any woman return to her natural roots. I found it encouraging reading and learning from the success stories of countless women who have made a commitment to staying natural.

Another very important ingredient that was missing from my other attempts to have unprocessed hair was natural hair care products. Through trial and error I realize that my hair flourishes when I incorporate products that are derived from Mother Nature. My strands love herbs, oils and infusions and with continued use the dryness I was often plagued with in the past has really come under control. Brands such as Karen's Body Beautiful Hair Milk and Hair Mask and Jane Carter Solutions Shampoo and Conditioner are really amazing.

Of all the things that made my natural hair journey a lasting decision, acceptance was the most important step. When I finally accepted the hair I was blessed with at birth and I let go of my unrealistic ideals of what my hair would never be. Once I embraced the hair texture that God blessed me an unnaturally long journey turned into a rewarding experience. Today my hair is vibrant and healthy and my decision to have natural hair was powered by

AS#234800445: NO AD
FOUND IN ROTATION

unmistakably the best decision I have ever made!

Newer Post

Home

Older Post

6 Responses:

KurlyQue

September 14, 2009 11:27 AM

That was a great entry. It's exactly what I needed to tell my sister. I literally quoted Wendy's entire last paragraph to her

Anonymous

September 15, 2009 7:15 AM

Great info...
I'm still learning to accept my natural crown :)
Thanks Wens...
Toni

Sarita

September 15, 2009 7:29 AM

That was a great article. I am constantly looking to improve my hair health and will have to try some of the products you posted.

Nice Work Cuz,
Rita

Anonymous

September 15, 2009 9:31 AM

You are my inspiration. Learning to love who we are continues to be difficult for black women. Our lips, our noses, our thighs, our hips, and our hair are all blessings. Understanding who we are in Christ, helps us to feel loves. God knew what we would look like before we were born and he then reminds us in His word that we are fearfully and wonderfully made.

hidaya

September 17, 2009 9:07 AM

Simply Awesome!

Anonymous

September 21, 2009 4:59 PM

Wen, I didn't have your patience, nor did I totally let go of the chemicals because I was still texturizing my hair every 6 weeks or so. Perhaps one day I can try this again and be less hasty to give up!! Keep doing what you're doing and keep loving the experience!!

Post a Comment

facebook

UrbanCurlz.com

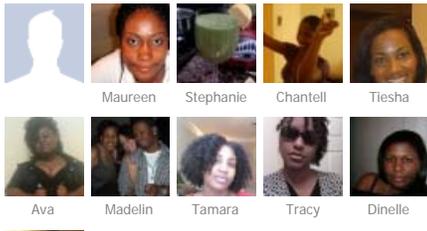

You like this. · Admin
Page · Error Unlike
You like UrbanCurlz.com.

UrbanCurlz.com has 1,4581,457 fans

AS#234800445: NO AD FOUND IN ROTATION

Recent Comments

- ▶ child dont i know it...
- ▶ Wow.. she sure DOES look like a perfect combinatio...

UrbanCurlz.com on Facebook

Recent Posts

- Sometimes You Need A Break - Urbancurlz
- Guess Who? - Urbancurlz
- Video | A Maven's Wash & Go - Urbancurlz
- When Are You Going To Relax? - Urbancurlz
- Tanika Ray Softens Up - Urbancurlz

- I so hear you. Just came back from a wedding in La...
- I tried this yesterday and it worked pretty well, ...
- to above ^^ visit curlynikki.com , she just did an...

Recent Tweets

- (inside joke) so were getting ready for bed and my 4 year old said "mommy, daddy has a tattoo on his... <http://fb.me/vRuzC0wl> 2 days ago
- Guess Who? <http://fb.me/Cl6X5jij> 3 days ago
- Guess who? <http://fb.me/wLXFPTel> 3 days ago
- Stay tuned for Monday's post about my thoughts on the Keratin Treatment. Do I think it was worth it? Will I do... <http://fb.me/AjAAvGbq> 4 days ago
- The loosened curl pattern is more noticeable in the front. <http://fb.me/CiyLhPOt> 4 days ago

follow me on Twitter